Dear Friend,

We boldly envision a world without gender-based violence because of your steadfast support and a sense of shared responsibility to end it. Your commitment enables us to bring communities together to change what causes harm. Justice is achieved through accountability and equitable relationships. When women and girls can live without fear and everyone can access equal opportunity, we will experience an entirely different world.

Yet, in 2022 alone, we have also experienced powerful backlash to women's rights from the U.S. Supreme Court's overturning the constitutional right to abortion, the brutal assaults on women due to wars in Ukraine and Ethiopia, the murder of a young woman by morality police in Iran and increased violence against women globally.

Global Rights for Women was founded to counter these injustices; your contributions put the needs of women and girls at the forefront of law and policy. Through our work around the world we have experienced what's possible when we center survivor needs as the basis for reform.

Together we are making an impact. In the Republic of Georgia, eight years after we started our work there, we have new data indicating police are furthering their prioritization of women's safety when they reach out for help. This year, Greece is piloting a coordinated response in three major cities to respond to the needs of refugee women and survivors of gender-based violence. In the U.S., we are preparing to release a report with recommendations to the Minneapolis Police Department to improve their response to domestic violence.

You make a wide-scale difference toward transforming our world because millions of women's lives are affected when a country changes a law or policy.

We are so encouraged by all of the work of our global partners in the face of enormous challenges and feel so much gratitude to you for supporting these projects that enact change for survivors and save lives. The momentum is real and there is so much more to do. Together we are creating action on a global scale.

- The Global Rights for Women Team

"The work that Global Rights for Women is doing is indispensable. Joining with Global Rights for Women is a way that each of us can be the change that we are waiting for, what the world needs, and that women deserve. Thank you."

Listening to Survivors

Gender-Responsive Reform
MINNESOTA, INTERNATIONAL

Survivors voices led the way in 2022 as we assessed the Minneapolis Police Department and the Republic of Georgia’s response to domestic violence. GRW also met with survivors in refugee camps and communities in Greece.

In partnership with the United Nations, we developed an international guidance on incorporating survivors voices into all reform efforts.

Survivors & stakeholders interviewed about their experiences:

67 in Minneapolis
48 in The Republic of Georgia
89 in Greece

“I’m grateful to be here. It’s the only gleam of hope in five years, because I’ve been heard and listened to.”
- Survivor from an MPD focus group

Nonviolence Programs

Pathways to Family Peace
MINNESOTA, UNITED STATES, INTERNATIONAL

Pathways – Our remote nonviolence program works with offenders to end their use of violence and abusive behaviors. It is a unique program that admits individuals from all over the world.

5 Groups
9 Facilitators
71 men & 7 women participants
85 survivors & 125 children directly impacted

Countless people indirectly impacted by transformed thinking.

Legal and Policy Reform

Supportive Response & Improved Safety
REPUBLIC OF GEORGIA

In eight years of a continued partnership, we’ve worked with police and direct service advocates to improve women’s safety and support when experiencing violence.

1,466 calls taken by the hotline for Violence Against Women in 2019.

42,000 officers will now have access and be using our new risk assessment tool to prioritize women’s safety.

100% of our recommendations will be implemented to better ensure women’s access to resources.

1 in 3 Women in the Republic of Georgia will be impacted as a result of our recommendations.

Training and Education

Driving Social Change
INTERNATIONAL

Through our thought leadership and expanding partnerships we’ve reached thousands of individuals around the world.

50+ In-Person and Online Events
5,180+ Attendees

86 policies, procedures and case files analyzed related to survivor services and risk assessment.

104 Countries Reached in 2022
Thanks to your support, we have now connected with over half of the world’s countries through our programs.
Together, we have made outstanding strides in systems' reform to ensure women and girls' safety locally and globally. Your gift today will advance important efforts so that more women and girls can realize a violence-free world.
